INTRODUCTION

The Faculty of Languages and Literature (FLL) is one of the most thriving faculties of UCP. FLL hosts the Department of English Literature, Department of Linguistics, English Language Center (ELC), and Chinese Language Center (CLC). Department of English Literature offers BS Language and Literature and MS English Literature programs, while the Department of Linguistics offers MS Applied Linguistics and PhD in Linguistics. ELC, and CLC provide language courses and support across faculties to cater to the university's diverse language requirements. FLL has a highly qualified faculty, including 8 PhD faculty members. The curriculum is structured to be contemporary and challenging, fostering a spirit of critical inquiry and an urge to discover, learn and debate issues relevant to linguistics and literature in the social and academic world. FLL provides an interactive and robust learning environment, ensuring that students acquire well-developed communication and analytical skills – a habit for independent thinking and a sense of personal and professional responsibility that employers seek among candidates in today's job market. Our mission is to provide students with an exceptional environment to pursue their studies in various programmes. With a degree from FLL, graduates can pursue multiple careers in education and research, publishing and editing, media and journalism, advertising and public relations, Business Administration and Management, counselling and social work, and technical content writing. FLL emphasises students' personal and intellectual growth inside and outside the classroom by engaging them in research projects and publications, reviewing academic papers, and organising conferences, seminars and theatrical performances to enhance their communication skills and confidence to face the challenges of the 21st-century market demands.
